Submitted below is PRQ Part II on Subject of References. Request full operational approval per Field Regulation No. 10-215.

36. DTLINEN.

37. Newham first met Subject in 1940 through some mutual Quacker friends. At that time Subject was apparently involved in some anti-Hitler activities, and introduced Newham to some friends who were also engaged in such activities. Shortly thereafter, Subject disappeared from the Berlin scene. Newham later learned that he went to Rome. After 1945, Newham again came in contact with Subject; at that time, the latter was the deputy editor-in-chief of Die Welt. Thereafter, they met from time to time, and Subject also published a number of Newham's articles in Die Welt. A somewhat loose, but friendly relationship has existed between them since that time.

38. NA. Subject is not in direct contact with a KUBARK CO, nor is it contemplated that Subject will be run in an agent capacity.

39. Financial motivation. However, Subject is known as a firm opponent of totalitarianism, whether of the radical right or of the left.

40. For the most complete listing of traces, see EGQA-72691. It cites 21 different trace-information replies.

41. None. Subject is not dependent upon DTLINEN for financial security and KUBARK has no tangible hold on him.

42. Subject is not working for any service nor does he feel that he might be involved with one. He of course is witting of PBPRIME interest in and support of DTLINEN, and it can be presumed that he is astute enough to guess that DTLINEN's true backer is KUBARK.
